

Chris Cormack

Eco-Markets Trader, Carbon Solutions

Chris Cormack is an Eco-Markets trader with responsibility for trading both mandatory and voluntary carbon for AGL Energy. In this role, Chris is responsible for AGL meeting its obligation under the NSW Greenhouse Gas Abatement Scheme and monetising AGL's abatement projects under the Climate Change Department's Greenhouse Friendly Scheme. Chris is also responsible for managing AGL's membership of, and trading on, the Chicago Climate Exchange.

Chris joined AGL in 2003, prior to his current role, he was part of the AGL Electricity trading desk where he worked as Wholesale Energy Analyst then as a Retail Energy Trader – this involved pricing and providing hedging options and financial electricity derivatives to help AGL's large customers meet their electricity exposure.

Before AGL Chris has worked at KPMG Consulting in London – where he worked on Financial and Business System solutions in the Financial Sector for customers such as Barclays Capital, Credit Suisse and Deutsche Bank.

Chris began his career as a Graduate Economist with the Commonwealth Department of Employment, Workplace Relations and Small Business and holds an honours degree in economics. He is 33 and lives in Melbourne with partner Sacha and daughter Sophie.
