

David Mountseer

Head of Carbon Management Services

David Mountseer is the head of AGL Energy's Carbon Management Services group. In this role, David is responsible for managing carbon related services to AGL's Major Customers – particularly those impacted by the National Greenhouse & Energy Reporting Act. David spearheaded the creation of the group and now leads the business which delivers tailored carbon management and reduction solutions to customers, complemented with advisory services around carbon policy and all related matters.

David joined AGL in 2000, when his energy performance contracting business was purchased by AGL. Prior to his current role, David managed AGL's Programs unit which was responsible for delivering major demand side efficiency and other energy and sustainability related programs to AGL's large customers.

David has more than 30 years experience in project and business development management as well as business management; he holds a first class honours Bachelor's degree in Applied Science and a Master's degree in Environmental Science.
