

Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy - Aussie Broadband Telco Services

May 2026

Overview

This Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy applies to Energy Telco Pty Limited (ABN 98 694 875 888) trading as Aussie Broadband Telco Services (Aussie Broadband Telco Services, us, we or our). Aussie Broadband Telco Services is a subsidiary of Aussie Broadband Limited (ACN 132 090 192). Aussie Broadband Telco Services is working with AGL Energy Limited and its related companies (AGL) to service customers receiving AGL telecommunications products and services.

This Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy explains how we collect, use, disclose, store, handle and protect your personal information under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) (as amended or updated from time to time) (Privacy Act) which includes the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs).

This Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy applies to all personal information collected through our interactions with you, including through our websites, apps, platforms, social media, telephone or emails.

What do we do?

Aussie Broadband Telco Services provides telecommunications services and IT solutions to residential customers and small businesses. This includes internet, phone services, mobile services, and hardware.

What is personal information?

In this Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy, 'personal information' has the meaning set out in Privacy Act. In general terms, personal information is information (whether fact or opinion) about an individual who is identified or reasonably identifiable by that information or other information combined with that information.

What types of personal information do we collect?

The types of personal information we collect about you will depend on the purpose we collect your personal information, including the types of products or services you buy from us, how you use them and our general relationship with you. This can include, in the case of:

- Customers buying our services: Information needed to verify your identity and to set up your account, including your name, date of birth, email address, proof of identity, financial information, including billing or mailing address, payment information (including credit or debit card information or bank account details), order details and phone number. For business clients, your individual relationship or account manager contact information will also be collected;
- Customers who elect to receive news about exclusive offers, promotions, or events: Your name, mailing or street address, email address, and telephone number(s);
- Customers who contact us and submit an enquiry or complaint, request a call-back, or request a product replacement: Your name, mailing or street address, email address, and telephone number;
- Prospective customers: Information such as your name, mailing or street address, email, telephone number;
- Trade credit applicants: Information required to assess your credit worthiness, including your credit or business history and any trade referees;
- Corporate suppliers and distributors: Mailing or street addresses and individual relationship or account manager contact information including email addresses and business telephone numbers;
- Information about other people: In some circumstances, we may need you to provide us with personal information about other individuals, such as your authorised representative. You will need to obtain consent from those individuals and provide them with a copy of this Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy before you can provide their personal information to us.

Telecommunications Information

Depending upon the products and services you buy from us, we may also collect telecommunications data about you. Telecommunications data has the meaning given in section 276(1) of the Telecommunications Act 1997 (Cth) (as amended or updated from time to time). This may include:

- Transaction information when customers use our apps: information relating to the use of apps, including route details (such as date and time, start and finish locations, distance travelled), usage data on how customers interact with our apps, including access dates and times, app features or pages viewed, browser type, app crashes and other system activity;

- Device data when customers use our apps: information about how customers interact with our apps, including hardware models, device IP address or other unique device identifiers, operating systems and versions, software, advertising identifiers, device motion data and mobile network data;
- Technical information and general analytics when customers use our websites or apps: information such as web browser type and browsing preferences, Internet service provider, referring/exit pages, date/time stamps, IP address, time zone and geolocation data (if applicable), some of which is collected automatically, arising from your use of our websites or platforms, as well as information about your usage of our websites or platforms when browsing. Technical information and general analytics is described below the 'Use of Google Analytics' section.

Other information we may also collect when you're using our apps can include functionality data such as mobile phone contact lists used to facilitate the transmission of calls and messages or information to display avatar visuals.

Sensitive Information

We may also collect limited sensitive information about you if it's relevant to the products or services we provide you. Sensitive information is defined in the Privacy Act and may include, for example, your criminal history (if applicable for fraud screening purposes), or biometric information (fingerprints or voice recognition) to identify you, or health information if we require this to provide you with a specific product or service. We will obtain your consent before we collect and use sensitive information about you, unless otherwise required or permitted by law.

How do we collect your personal information?

We collect your personal information directly from you and when you interact with us or use your services, including when you:

- interact with our websites, apps, platforms or call centre team;
- use our network, products or services;
- sign up to receive news and offers, promotions, or events; and

- make inquiries about us or our products or services or otherwise communicate with us by email, by telephone, in person, via a website or otherwise; and

We may also collect personal information about you from sources other than you such as through:

- credit reporting agencies;
- video surveillance if you attend our premises (your image may be captured by CCTV);
- publicly available information including websites, social media platforms, internet or telephone directories; and
- our suppliers, business partners, and other companies with whom we have business relationships to deliver your products and services, including AGL.

Do we use cookies and other tracking technologies?

We use the following technologies to collect technical information and general analytics:

- cookies, which are data files that are placed on your device and often include an anonymous unique identifier. For more information about cookies, and how to disable cookies, visit www.allaboutcookies.org;
- log files, which track actions occurring on our website or app; and
- web beacons, tags, and pixels, which are electronic files used to record information about how you browse our website or app.

You may disable your web browser from accepting cookies and other tracking technologies used to collect technical information and general analytics when browsing our website. If you do so, you can still access our website, but it may impact your user experience.

Use of Google Analytics

In addition to our cookies, certain third parties may deliver cookies to your device for a variety of reasons. For example, we sometimes use various web analytics tools that help us understand how visitors engage with our websites, including for example, Google Analytics or Google Signals.

Any third party links or advertising on our websites may also use cookies. You may receive these cookies by clicking on the link to the third party site or advertising. Please be aware that we do not control the collection or use of information by these third parties, and these third party cookies or analytics services are not subject to this Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy.

You should therefore contact these companies directly if you have any questions about their collection and/or use of your information. When linking to any other site, you should always check the relevant website's privacy policy before providing any personal information.

We may also disclose your personal information to third parties where:

- you have consented to the disclosure;
- it is required or authorised by law or reasonably necessary for law enforcement or for public safety; or
- it will prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to somebody's life or health.

If you receive AGL telecommunications services or products which are provided by Aussie Broadband Telco Services, we will share your personal information, including your contact details account information and marketing preferences, with AGL. Any personal information we share with AGL will be handled by AGL and its related companies in accordance with the AGL Privacy Policy which can be found on AGL's website www.agl.com.au.

Do we disclose your personal information overseas?

We may disclose your personal information to organisations located outside Australia, including suppliers who may provide products or services connected with our business.

We use service providers located in New Zealand, the United States (including in California), Singapore, Malaysia, India and the Philippines, which are each subject to laws that apply to the protection of personal information in their respective locations.

We will take reasonable steps to ensure that any overseas recipient of your personal information handles the information in a manner consistent with applicable Australian privacy laws. For more details about any specific transfer of your personal information, please contact us using the details provided in the 'How to contact us' section below.

How do we store your personal information?

We store your personal information using electronic record keeping methods and secure databases. We may combine or link personal information we hold about you with other personal information about you from third party sources and use this internally, for example for data analytics, to identify trends and opportunities. For paper records we use secure storage cabinets with restricted access or similar secure methods.

How do we protect and secure your personal information?

We implement measures to protect and safeguard your personal information from misuse, loss, theft and unauthorised access, modification or disclosure. We maintain physical security over paper and electronic data stores, such as through security systems at our premises. We also maintain various computer and network security, for example, we use firewalls (security measures for the internet) and other industry standard security systems such as user identifiers and passwords to control access to our computer systems.

We provide our staff with regular training about protecting and safeguarding your personal information and complying with our privacy obligations under the Privacy Act. We require staff to implement behavioural security protocols such as ensuring all laptops and devices are password protected and locked if unattended, promoting a clean desk policy, using document destruction bins and wearing ID staff tags. We also implement data retention and destruction policies to retain personal information for the purpose of collection and for the period required to provide you with your service or product, to run our business and as otherwise required by law.

Please notify us immediately if you know or suspect that your personal information has been subject to any data breach, breach of security or other unauthorised activity. If you have any questions about security of information, please refer to our 'How to Contact Us' section below.

Credit Reporting Policy

We may collect information about you from, and disclose your personal information to, organisations whose businesses involve handling personal information in order to provide another entity with information about the credit worthiness of an individual (Credit Reporting Bodies) in connection with your application for Services, or other dealings with us. Those Credit Reporting Bodies may then include that information in reports that they provide to other credit providers to assist in assessing your credit worthiness. For example, if you fail to meet your payment obligations to us, or if you commit a serious credit infringement in relation to credit for our Services, we may be entitled to disclose this information to Credit Reporting

Bodies. We may collect information about your credit worthiness or to establish your eligibility for consumer credit from a Credit Reporting Body.

We hold credit and credit eligibility information in the same manner that we hold personal information.

The types of credit and credit eligibility information that we may collect, maintain or disclose include:

- information about your identity;
- information requests to credit reporting bodies;
- credit applications and arrangements;
- details about default listings, overdue payments or serious credit infringements, and subsequent payments or arrangements;
- bankruptcy or credit related court proceedings and other publicly available information; and
- credit scores, risk assessments and credit worthiness.

We may use or disclose information about your credit to:

- process applications and manage credit;
- develop our credit rating systems;
- assist you to avoid default and to assess or manage a financial hardship application;
- collect debts from you;
- deal with serious credit infringements;
- deal with complaints;
- deal with regulatory matters, court orders and when required or authorised by law;
- assign debts; and
- adhere to our credit reporting obligations.

You have the right to make a request to Credit Reporting Bodies to not use credit reporting information about you for pre-screening of direct marketing by a credit provider. You can also request Credit Reporting Bodies not to use or disclose credit reporting information about you if you have reason to believe you are a victim of fraud.

The Credit Reporting Bodies that we use are:
